Bombings in 1993

Irish Republican Army (IRA)

- Also known as the Provisional Irish Republican Army
- Aimed to bring unity between Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic
- Committed over 3000 acts of terror between 1970 and the ceasefire of 1997
- Good Friday Agreement of 1998 essentially ended the IRA and they broke into splinter groups

Real IRA (RIRA)

- Formed as a response to the 1998 ceasefire agreement
- The founders disagreed with the principle of non-violence which was the basis of the ceasefire agreement
- Responsible for the Omagh bombing which killed 29 people and wounded between 200-300 people
- They are still active

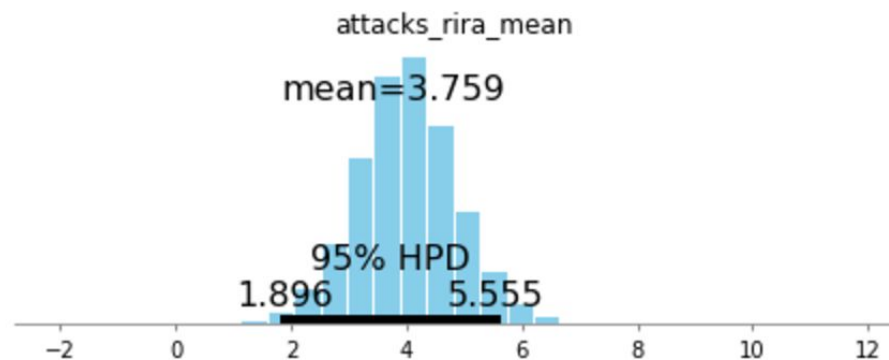

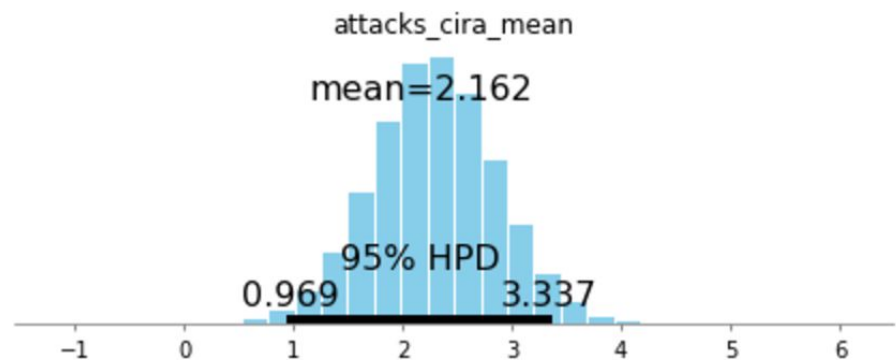

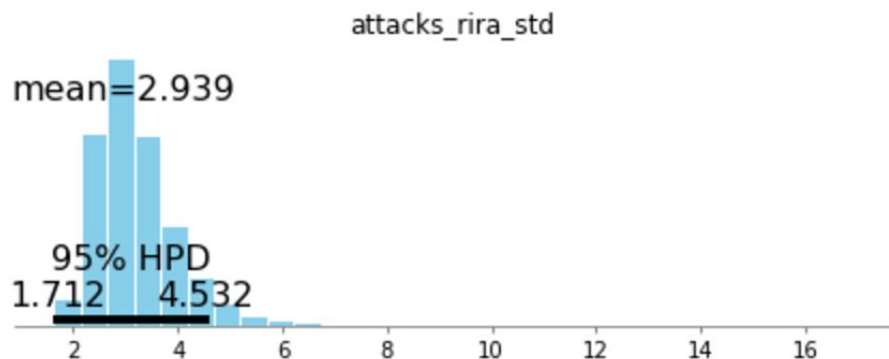

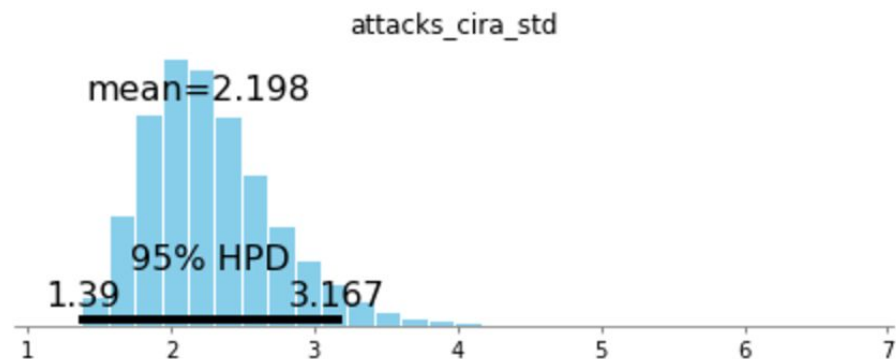

Continuity IRA (CIRA)

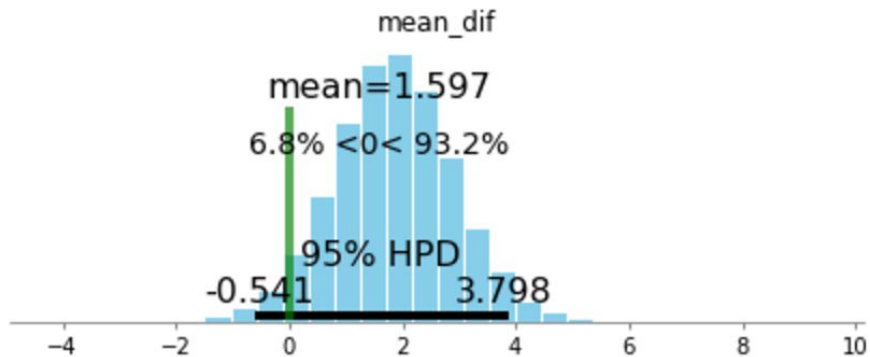

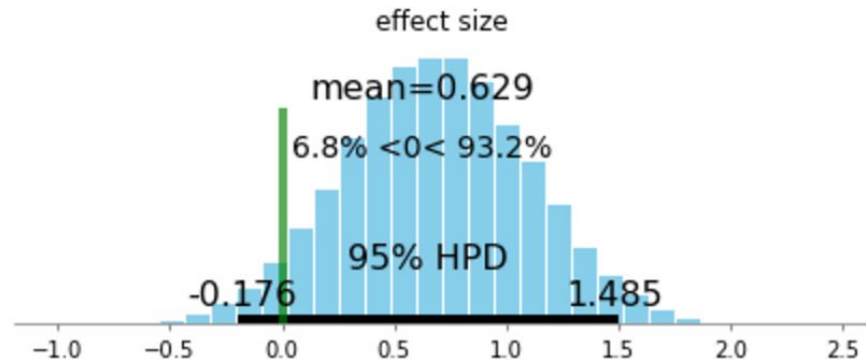

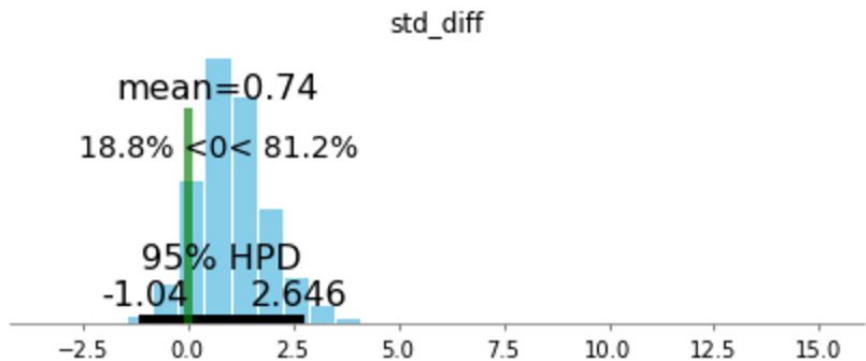

- Founded in 1994 when the IRA declared a ceasefire
- Doesn't appear in the terrorism data set until 1996
- Committed a similar amount of terror attacks to the RIRA, but killed far fewer people
